with

LOCATION

This unique summer program starts with orientation in Beijing at Tsinghua University ("the M.I.T. of the East"). Then teams led by Tsinghua professors travel by train to remote areas of China to teach and conduct research. The program concludes with debriefing back in Beijing.

PROGRAM DETAILS

The Summer Service Learning Program (SSLP) in China brings together US and Tsinghua University students to live, learn, and work together on teams, providing critical education resources to the poorest regions of China. This low-cost, high-impact program enables hundreds of US and Tsinghua University students to learn about each other's languages and cultures, practice global citizenship, and mitigate chronic poverty at the grassroots level.

COURSES AND CREDITS

Students will receive a certificate, NOT a transcript, for their participation. Any academic credit must be pre-arranged with the home institution (usually as an independent study).

HOUSING AND MEALS

Students stay in Tsinghua University dormitories during orientation. Housing at remote locations varies. All meals are provided.
